Corporate Information

Protus3 is one of the few – if not the only – security firms that offers security consulting, security system design, and investigative services. Since 1988, we have provided security consulting, system design, investigations, and training to local, state, and federal government departments and organizations.

Protus3 is committed to providing comprehensive security programs and controls so that clients will have the assets and stability to prosper. Our role as a client partner is to develop the appropriate layers of security to protect our clients' assets and economic advantage. We focus on utilizing people, processes, and technology within the business model of our clients to best protect them from threats likely to affect their bottom line.

We help clients prosper by protecting people (reducing the risk of loss from injury and litigation), intellectual property (reducing the risk of breach, theft, insider threats, or economic espionage), and physical assets (reducing the risk of theft, sabotage, or misuse).

The staff at Protus3 is comprised of individuals with a total of over 450 years of security experience. This foundation includes formal training in security related fields, experience in the construction industry, hands-on experience both as security providers and as security managers, thousands of unique security evaluations, and extensive experience in security consulting for a variety of projects and a number of different companies. Protus3's combined expertise is augmented by staff members with experience in security guard management, electronic security system design and management, security hardware, security-related training, military and police counterintelligence, tactical and counter-terrorism operations, and state and local law enforcement and security-manpower administration.

Protus3 neither represents nor endorses any specific line or brand of security equipment or service. Instead, we work to develop security controls that are appropriate, scalable, meet industry compliance requirements, and support our clients' economic advantage.

Protus3 is committed to developing long-term relationships with clients. We are proud of our staff and our reputation in the security industry which is founded on integrity, passion, creativity, and solutions that are in the best interest of our clients.

We are experts in Antiterrorism and Force Protection (ATFP), Physical Security Planning, System Design, Assessments, Technology, Law Enforcement Operations, and Investigations.
